What to Look Forward to in Oklahoma City

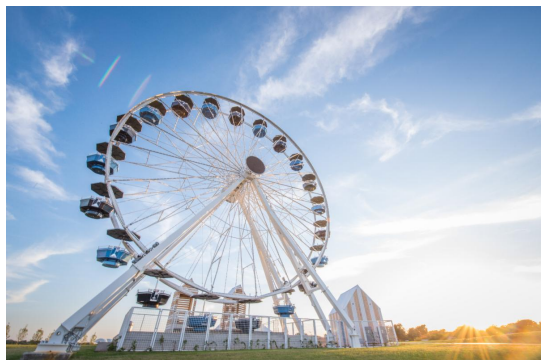

A New Downtown Area

We are very excited to showcase the new downtown Oklahoma City, an area that has been completely transformed by brownfield redevelopment. The brand new Oklahoma City Convention Center is itself a brownfield redevelopment project!

Innovative Mobile Workshops

Join us for several outdoor mobile workshops featuring innovative brownfield redevelopment, including a tour of Oklahoma City's downtown and riverfront which were transformed into an active city center through the Core to Shore project. Also tour the Wheeler District, a revitalization success in action that features a Ferris Wheel. You don't want to miss this. Ride with us at Brownfields 2021.

Networking and Learning Opportunities

The goal of the National Brownfields Training Conference is to provide a networking and learning environment for the Brownfields community. We are working to ensure that the venue and travel arrangements will be as safe and healthy as possible so conference attendees can continue to experience the valuable in-person education and networking opportunities that have defined the Brownfields Conference since 1996.

The EPA State and Tribal Response Program Solicitation is Now Open

The EPA State and Tribal Response Program solicitation is now open, with applications for funding due December 11. Commonly known as the Section 128(a) which authorizes $50 million in non-competitive grants to support state and tribal response program efforts to assess, cleanup and revitalize brownfields.
